

Habitat Newark Crew Attends Jimmy and Rosalyn Carter Build In Chiang Mai, Thailand.

Four frequent volunteers from Habitat for Humanity Newark recently attended the Jimmy and Rosalyn Carter Work Project in Chiang Mai, Thailand.

The build was attended by volunteers from all over the world and together they built more than 80 single family homes and a community center. When the volunteers arrived the foundations were poured and the first eight courses of blocks were in place. The volunteers proceeded to completely finish the inside and outside of the homes in the next five days.

Attending from Habitat Newark were: Jim Tierney, Executive Director Emeritus; John Scott, former President of the Board of Directors; Kathryn Cassidy, member of the Carpenters Club and Volunteer of the year recipient; and Jason Ramsey, Construction Manager. Most of the group is pictured with other volunteers at the site in Thailand.
